INTRODUCTION AND GENERAL INDEX

HILL DIRECTORY COMPANY, publishers of Southeastern Directories, (publishers of the Laurinburg Directory since 1959), present to subscribers and the general public, this, the 1962 edition of the Laurinburg City Directory, which also includes College Park, East Laurinburg, Homemont, Macland, McLaurin Acres, Pine Acres, Westwood and Rural Route Residents.

Confidence in the growth of Laurinburg's industry, population and wealth, and in the advancement of its civic and social activities, will be maintained as sections of this Directory are consulted, for the Directory is a mirror truly reflecting Laurinburg to the world.

The enviable position occupied by HILL'S Directories in the estimation of the public, has been established by rendering the best in Directory service. With an unrivaled organization, and having had the courteous and hearty cooperation of the business and professional men and residents, the publishers feel that the result of their labors will meet with the approval of every user, and the Laurinburg Directory will fulfill its mission as a source of authentic information pertaining to the community.

Five Major Departments

The five major departments are arranged in the following order:—

I. THE BUYERS' GUIDE constitutes the first major department, printed on goldenrod paper, and contains the advertisements of leading manufacturing, business and professional interests of Laurinburg. The advertisements are indexed under headings descriptive of the business represented. This is reference advertising at its best, and merits a survey by all buyers eager to familiarize themselves with sources of supply. In a progressive community like Laurinburg, the necessity of having this kind of information immediately available, is obvious. General appreciation of this fact is evidenced by the many reference users of this City Directory service.

II. THE CLASSIFIED BUSINESS DIRECTORY is the second major department, printed on canary paper. This department lists the names of all business and professional concerns in alphabetical order under appropriate headings. This feature constitutes an invaluable and indispensable catalog of the numerous interests of the community. The Directory is the common intermediary between buyer and seller. As such, it plays an important part in the daily activities of the commercial, industrial and professional world. More buyers and sellers meet through the Classified Business Directory than through any other medium.

III. THE ALPHABETICAL LIST OF NAMES of residents and business and professional concerns, is the third major department, printed on white paper. This is the only record in existence that aims to show the name, marital status, occupation and address of each adult resident of Laurinburg, and the name, official personnel, nature and address of each firm and corporation in the community.

IV. THE DIRECTORY OF HOUSEHOLDERS, INCLUDING STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE is the fourth major department, printed on green paper. In this section the numbered streets are arranged in numerical order, followed by the named streets in alphabetical order; the numbers of the residences and business concerns are arranged in numerical order under the name of each street, and the names of the householders and concerns are placed opposite the numbers. The names of the intersecting streets appear at their respective crossing points on each street. Special features of this section are the designation of tenant-owned homes and the listing of telephone numbers.

V. THE NUMERICAL TELEPHONE DIRECTORY is the fifth major department, printed on blue paper.

Community Publicity

The Directory reflects the achievements and ambitions of the community, depicting in unbiased terms what it has to offer as a place of residence, as a business location, as a manufacturing site and as an educational center. To broadcast this information, the publishers have placed copies of this issue of the Directory in Directory Libraries, where they are readily available for free public reference, and serve as perpetual and reliable advertisements of Laurinburg and vicinity.

There are more than 1,000 of these Directory Libraries, installed and maintained in cities and towns throughout the U. S., Canada and Puerto Rico through the courtesy of members of the Association of North American Directory Publishers, under whose supervision the system is operated and of which Hill Directory Company is a member.

The publishers appreciatively acknowledge the recognition by those progressive business and professional men who have demonstrated their confidence in the City Directory as an advertising medium, with assurance that it will bring a commensurate return.

Scotland County

After generations of labor and education, Scotland County, citadel of North Carolina Scots, is gathering spectacular fruits. A robust economy equally shared by time-honored young, strapping farm and industry; a multi-million-dollar college with a fresh approach to the wisdom of the ages. These are the most spectacular.

Balanced

Only twenty-eight miles long and twenty miles wide, Scotland County is nevertheless chockfull of lively history, productive countryside, and industrious people. 10,000 of them live within the four incorporated towns. The remaining 15,000 make their homes in the country or grouped about the eight or nine farm and mill communities. The stamp of Scottish character is everywhere—in the ring of the name, in the neatness of the home, in the prosperity of business, in the well-managed farm, in the tenacity of purpose, in the vigor of church and school.

Scotland's 318 square miles straddle the wispy border between sandhills and coastal plain. Her southern border lies on the South Carolina line. The county is varied in its topography, the southeast side being low and flat, and the northwest section higher and rolling. Draining the area is a web of small creeks and streams, all of which flow eventually to either the Cape Fear or Pee Dee basins. Scotland's main waterway is Lumber River, which runs down the northeast and east border.

A small county to begin with, Scotland further reduced by government-owned Sandhills Game Management Area, which occupies the northern fifth of the area. This territory and about two-thirds of farm-owned land are thickly wooded. Much of this forest, of tall long-leaf pines, gum and oak, has remained untouched, and thousands of acres have recently been reforested. These woods are Scotland's most attractive natural asset, and within their depths a variety of wildlife make their home.

Cotton Country

Subtract the forests, the park and the towns, and it leaves only 50,000 acres of farm land. But Scotland has a way of making the most out of what it has; and the county currently ranks high among cotton-producing areas in North Carolina. Out of a 1961 agricultural income of 6.3 million dollars, cotton brought 2½ million. Tobacco was next with one million dollars, and livestock accounted for another one and a half million. Products of the forest represent a potential which has been hardly realized. One-third came from this source in 1960.

Commercial hog and cattle production are comparatively new elements in the agricultural picture, but are expected to expand rapidly with the stimulus of the gigantic Laurinburg-Maxton cattle feed lot.

Truck Crops Fade

While cotton has held its own in Scotland, with steadily increasing yields due to mechanization, insect control, and more know-how, a few familiar crops have passed out of the picture. There used to be around 30,000 acres of canteloupes and melons; now there are little more than a thousand. In the twenty's and thirties, peaches were thought to be Scotland's most promising young crop. Now there is only one commercial peach orchard in the county.

The sharecropper is becoming obsolete in North Carolina and in Scotland County. What work can not be done by machines is done by the day laborer. Only 25 percent of the farm population can be strictly classed as tenants. Another agricultural trend is the cash renting of land on which to grow cotton. This trend has grown out of the urgency to use the right land for the right crop, and in many cases, cotton is being grown on poorly-suited acreage. So the enlightened planter is seeding his own land with some other crop, and renting a field for his cotton.

Fewer, Larger

There have been some dramatic changes in the last six years in size and number of farms. The number of farms in Scotland decreased from 1241 in 1954 to 810 in 1959. During the same period, the average size of farms increased from 100.5 acres to 111.4 acres. And the value went up from $88.35 per acre to $136.64 per acre. Although the small farmer is still the agricultural backbone, the movement toward large farms is rapid.

Industry

Scotland County's industrial receipts equal those from agriculture. Textiles comprise by far the major portion of industry, there being eleven plants in the county producing tire cord, bedspreads, dish cloths and towels, cotton and synthetic yarns and fabrics. Products of Heritage, Scotland, and Morgan Mills are sold under the Morgan-Jones label. Dixiana and Waverly Mills produce carpets and yarns respectively. One of the most interesting items is the Minuet bedspread made by Heritage Weavers. This spread is a machine-made duplication of a authentic colonial pattern, and rivals in beauty and strength anything that Grandma could have created by hand.

Scotland's mill towns and villages are for the most part clean and attractive. The plants themselves have all been updated and beautified since the war, the surroundings landscaped, and the homes in the area range from strikingly handsome to modestly neat. There is nothing about these towns to disturb the natural grace and tranquility of Scotland's scenic countryside.

Almost all of the textile mills are owned or managed by native families, who have been in the business for a long time; but their products are sold all over the world.

First

Richmond Mill Pond was the site of Scotland's first textile plant. It was built by Capt. Charles Malloy from Cumberland County just after the Civil War. The industry was preceded by Murdock Morrison's gun factory, destroyed by Sherman in 1865. Mark Morgan came into the business in 1872. and subsequently became president and sire of a whole family of Morgan Millers.

With home offices at historic Richmond Pond, Morgan Mills now has 6 plants and employs the largest single work force outside of farming in the county.

Other native industries are lumber and plywood, fertilizer production, and other farm-related manufacturers and boat building.

Watch Makers

Scotland's most recent and different excursion into the industrial field was the acquisition of a branch of the Ingraham Watch Co. Ingraham came to Laurinburg from Bristol, Conn. in 1959. Citizens of Laurinburg put up $325,000 toward the $700,000 plant, whose executives and workers have been warmly accepted into the community.

Rorie Construction Co. — North State Realty Co.

Scotland County is served by four railroads: Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, Rockingham, and the Laurinburg and Southern. The Seaboard is what used to be the Carolina Central Railroad. The removal of their stock from Wilmington to Laurinburg in the 1860's was one of the biggest impetuses to growth in the area. It is around this time that the shift of importance from Laurel Hill Church to Laurinburg schools becomes apparent.

First Industry

Scotland's first big enterprise is dying away with the inexorable march of time and progress. In 1920, 45,625 bales of cotton were ginned in the county, and in 1958 the figure dropped to 9,702 bales. Presently there are around eight gins operating in Scotland, Neill McKay's (pronounced McCoy) at Wagram being one of the largest. With increased production through modern farm methods, it is hoped that the ginning business will hold its own in years to come.

History

Scotland County's early history is also that of its parent, Richmond. The territory was settled in the 18th century by waves of Highland Scotch, overflowing from the Cape Fear and Pee Dee regions. The exact date is not known, but Laurel Hill Church was raised in 1797. A considerable settlement grew up around Laurel Hill Church (not to be confused with Laurel Hill community of today.)

The New York to New Orleans Coach Road cut right through the middle of Scotland. Entering the county at Wagram, the road ran to Laurel Hill Church, thence to Springfield Mills and on into South Carolina. Inns and taverns for overnight travelers were located in each of these villages, and the social and commercial life of the area centered around them until the coming of the railroad.

Scotch Fair

Laurel Hill Church was also the site of the old Scotch Fair, inaugurated by Duncan McFarland for the benefit of settlers who were too far removed from Fayetteville or Cheraw, S. C. In time, the folks from Fayetteville and Cheraw were coming to it. And remote mountaineers drove their covered wagons out of the hills and down to this flatland market.

Education

There is a legend explaining why the area's pioneers were more school-minded than their neighbors. When emigrants were pushing up the Cape Fear River from Wilmington, someone posted a sign reading: "The best land lies 100 miles west of here." The illiterates stared blankly at the sign; those able to read pushed on to establish themselves in what is now Scotland, and to breed a competent race.

The earliest known school was Spring Hill Academy at Wagram. Spring Hill Academy was in existence at least by 1820, and (as in the case in Laurinburg) subsequent public schools are lineal descendants of this pioneer academy. School building or not, education went on and produced a record-making number of orators, lawyers, preachers, politicians, and doctors. The talking professions seem to have been especially attractive to Scottish youth.

Tories Active

During the Revolution, Scotland and Richmond Counties were harrassed by Tory raids from without, and torn by conflicting sentiments within, for many of the Highlanders retained a stubborn loyalty to the crown. In the main, however, the few settlers to west of Lumber were free to establish their homes, increase their families, and enjoy the warm, favorable climate, with its 212-day growing season.

During the middle years of the nineteenth century, a slow but significant drift in population was occurring from the Laurel Hill Church to a point two miles southeast. There Duncan McLaurin, his family and friends, put up a school in 1852 which, within two years, was attracting students from as far away as Charleston.

Old Store

The village around the school was called "The Old Store," in reference to James R. McLaurin's general store, where whiskey could be had for a reasonable 10 cents per tumbler. A cotton gin, blacksmith shop, and three or four dwellings were the only other companions to the handsome new high school.

Old Store, or Laurinburg, as the Post Office officially called it, was pushed into an era of headlong growth by the advent of railroading. The first train came through just in time to carry off a contingent of Scotland boys to the Civil War. The Carolina Central moved its shops from Wilmington to Laurinburg, and until 1894 they were the areas biggest industry. There was a mild depression when the shops pulled out, but Laurinburg quickly shifted its attention to cotton and textiles, and payrolls again rose to a hopeful level.

Sherman Was Here

Sherman's army seems to have been omnipresent in 1865. He marched through Scotland too, burning and pillaging. He made old Laurel Hill Church his headquarters. An especial target was Morrison's gun factory at Richmond Mills.

The following decade was a momentous one for Scotland's future economy. It was during that time that the textile industry was firmly established, and this trade has grown to be the biggest single employer outside of farming.

In petitioning for a new county called Scotland, the residents of east Richmond testified that they had spent more money in transportation to Rockingham and for accommodations there than it would take to run a county government for 100 years.

Reconstruction

The making of Scotland County involved more serious issues than mere convenience. The decade during which citizens of the lower end of Richmond County were working for separation was also a decade of political unrest throughout the whole state. The legislature of 1897 was Republican-Populist, and nowhere were the ill-effects of carpet-bag government so fiercely resented as in this Democratic territory which is now Scotland County. Forty-eight Negroes held office in Richmond, many as magistrates and school board members who could not write their own names. The sturdy Scotchmen of lower Richmond formed an active Red Shirt organization to oppose irresponsible leadership and to press for the new county. In 1899, after almost ten years of intense lobbying and legislative travail, Scotland was finally allowed its longed-for birth. Heroes in the effort were W. G. Quakenbush, who prepared an exhaustive table of comparison showing the relative standing of Scotland among the other 96 counties, and Hector McLean, the area's representative in the 1899 legislature. Throughout their troubles, the citizens of Scotland were noted for their peaceful and lawful methods.

Little Squalor

Like most counties in North Carolina, Scotland County has its share of poor folks. Per capita income in 1958 was $1,215, Scotland ranking fortieth in the state. However, most of the homes in both city and countryside appear to range from modest to substantial, with a minimum of squalid farms or slum areas. It is interesting to note that Laurinburg has constructed 200 housing units replacing some of its worst slum areas.

The Indian population in Scotland amounts to some 350 people. They are thought to be of the same stock as the Indians of Robeson County, ones known as Croatans. A few of the Indians own land, but most are tenant farmers, a fast-dying breed in Scotland.

Schools

The county's school system clings to the tried and true. Some people still remember when a good teacher and an interested pupil were the only necessary ingredients in the educational stew. If there was no building to be had, class met under a convenient tree. If there were few or no textbooks, school didn't close down, because the teacher's head was filled with solid information and wisdom, not just pedagogical methodology. Today there are plenty of buildings and textbooks, but the emphasis in Scotland is still on those prime factors—teacher and the pupil. Scotland was the first county in the state to vote a county-wide tax extending the school term from eight to nine months.

The county system has eleven schools, five of which are combined elementary and high schools.

Good Teachers

Despite the fact that Scotland has no big schools and pays no supplement, the system has had no trouble finding good teachers. Out of a total of one hundred and forty-four instructors, only three are teaching on the B certificate. This is a remarkable record for a rural county system, and we suspect one big factor is Supt. J. J. Pence, who has been in the county since 1920.

Visitor's Comment

You may have heard that Scotland is clannish. It is; but all you need to join the clan is goodness, honesty, and a workmanlike spirit. For Scotland is conservative in the best sense of the word, weighing each change to make sure it is really for the better, rejecting any step that violates its well-tested values.

Towns

As Laurinburg sprang up around a school, so Wagram built itself about a church. To many people, a Scotch Baptist may seem to be an impossible phenomenon, but there was such an animal on Scotland's northeast border. His name was Donald or Daniel Whyte, and he emigrated to the Carolinas in 1807, stopping beside the Lumber River to minister to a small band of compatriots who farmed the land there. Rev. Whyte was such a powerful preacher that he even converted some Presbyterians, and Spring Hill Baptist Church was organized with just seven members. A marble inscription in the present church states that the forenoon services were in English, and the afternoon services in Gaelic. Donald Wyte and his wife, Catherine Campbell, owned 2000 acres of land along the river, and to this day, every bit of it has remained in the hands of their descendents.

Wagram is one of those place-names whose origin may soon be lost to rising generations. It seems that about 1850 a Mr. Williams from Red Springs built a narrow-gauge railroad from that point to the Spring Hill Community. A great admirer of Napoleon Mr. Williams decided to name the station after one of the Frenchman's most glorious victories, that at Wagram in lower Austria. (Napoleonic pronunciation—Vah-grahm; Carolina version—Way-grum.) The town was incorporated in 1912, and had a 1961 population of 562.

Spring Hill

Spring Hill was so named because of a little branch which ran out of the knoll on which the church was built. By 1820, Spring Hill Academy had been established, and shortly afterwards a post office was built and named Fontcol, Latin version of Spring Hill. This little community between Shoe Hill Creek and the Lumber River was augmented in 1910 by the removal of Montpelier Presbyterian Church from over in Hoke County. W. G. Buie's general store had been opened around 1900.

Gibson

It is said that Gibson was settled when Anson county's western border was the Mississippi River, but it was not incorporated until 1899. Quaker families predominated in the first group of settlers. A traveling minister in 1751 wrote in his journal that he had visited a small settlement of Quakers on Gun Swamp and Piney Grove (S. C.) and found them in good spirits even though they had to travel 100 miles to attend the year meeting. John Whitcomb Riley's grandmother was among them. After 1800, most Quakers, abolitionist by religion, joined the great migration to Indiana and the Northwest territory, leaving behind those who had married out of their faith. Other immigrants soon took over their property, and their descendents comprise the Gibson Community of today. The Gibsons were Scots from Virginia and came sometime in the 1750's.

Modern Gibson, right on the South Carolina line, is one of Scotland's four incorporated towns. It is the only town in the county which is not predominantly Presbyterian or Baptist. Noah Gibson, in addition to being a successful merchant, was an ardent Methodist. His brother Thomas was a minister, and together they created a stronghold of Methodism in the midst of a Presbyterian land. Most of Gibson's people are farmers, but a number cross the line to work in Delta Mills, Cheraw, S. C. Z. V. Pate General Merchandise store is a large and historic establishment and operates another store in Laurel Hill. Two sizeable cotton gins are still running in Gibson. The town is characterized by nice homes, a neat business district, and 501 friendly people. Gibson had a newspaper at the turn of the century called the Gibson Vidette. And the Commercial State Bank there has the longest continuous history in the County.

Laurel Hill

Laurel Hill's most interesting senior citizen is Ralph Morrison, 86 year-old past superintendent of Waverly and Morgan Mills. It was Mr. Morrison's father who owned a gun factory at Richmond Mill Pond during the Civil War. Ralph Morrison says Laurel Hill was named for the mountain laurel which once grew around the edge of Gum Swamp, and for the fact that the town was on a slight rise. For many years, the village was known as Laurel Hill Depot, to distinguish it from Laurel Hill Church, which used to be a town in its own right. The depot was established around 1861 for what is now the Seaboard Airline. In 1899 there were 10 or 12 homes and Z. V. Pate's general store. Now a number of merchant establishments stand on Laurel Hill's main street, and the nearby textile mills provide employment for many residents. But most of the people are farmers and bring their cotton in to the Pates Gin. Mr. Morrison, a still faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, remembers the time when every man made his own law and had a weapon to protect it.

Old Hundred

On U. S. 74 west of Laurel Hill community stands the little village of Old Hundred. It marks the hundredth mile of the Seaboard formerly Carolina Central Railway, measuring from Wilmington. This hundred mile stretch is said to be the second longest stretch of perfectly straight railroad in the world. Moscow Railway across the Russian steppes boasts the longest.

Johns

Johns, a small town in the southern corner of Scotland, was settled in 1875. The name came later, in 1884, and honored Capt. James T. John who gave land for the Atlantic Coastline Railroad station there. A store and post office were established in 1886, and the Scotland Supply Co., a sizeable operation, in 1901.

East Laurinburg

East Laurinburg is the only incorporated mill town in Scotland. Tangent with Laurinburg proper, it contains around 695 people and the several textile mills in which they work.

Riverton

Riverton community, between Wagram and the river, is a unique summer homing place to many descendents of the Old Spring Hill settlers. Not a few of these Johnsons, McMillans, and Memory's trace their lineage right back to Donald Whyte and Catherine Campbell. In fact the name Riverton was given by a great-great grandson of theirs, Archibald Johnson. Ancestral homes of this old clan stand side by side with new summer cabins along the riverside roads. This inviting retreat, tucked away in shady groves, is enjoyed by about fifty residents.

Airpine

Laurinburg and Maxton have taken a pumpkin and turned it into a dazzling coach which is hurrying down the road of industrial progress. From World War II to 1955, Laurinburg-Maxton Air Base sat among the weeds, an island of deserted buildings in a sea of useless land. Now, under the name of Airpine the old airbase may become North Carolina's most unusual industrial park.

Located on 5,700 acres between Shoe Heel Creek and Lumber River, Airpine has been released by the government to a joint commission from the two towns. It is the only park in America where Class A manufacturing concerns operate side by side with a 900-acre pasture and feed lot for the commercial fattening of beef cattle. Airpine's stock on the hoof amounted to some 4000 head in 1961 and 1962. Swift and Co. is the biggest contractor at present. Strategically situated downwind from less odorous enterprises, the pasture has total facilities for 30,000 head of cattle.

Eight industries are currently located in the park. Many of them have occupied existing buildings and hangars left when the air base was shut down. One hundred zoned industrial sites are available, and prospects are good that there will be eventual takers for all of them.

The Airport Commission has made elaborate and detailed plans for the development of their immense facility. Pine trees have been planted on 2000 acres, roads are being improved; and industrial employee can look forward to a deluxe recreation center, restaurant, bank, post office, drug store, and service station. One runway is being maintained for the use of private planes.

Completely financed and managed by local people, Airpine holds out a lure to the home-seeking industry. The surroundings are beautiful, the plans are extremely professional, the facilities will be unrivaled; and even the steers, munching leisurely in their wooded pasture, lend a sense of quiet serenity and relaxation to the setting.

Laurinburg

Lazy people wouldn't like Laurinburg; and Laurinburg wouldn't care too much for them either. Because work is among the supreme virtues in Scotland's county seat. It is an ancestral attitude, and the 8242 people are about 95 percent native. Scotch blood runs strong in the veins of these people. They know that work is not only practical; it is proper. It is the rock of character, the mother of discipline, and the conquerer of handicap. The attitude of work is abundant, and spills over into the after-five-o'clock hours. Laurinburg citizens are by nature more inclined toward public service than toward private recreation. Church and club work are actively supported. Industry is eagerly and effectively pursued. Racial problems are anticipated and solved. The future of the town is considered and planned in advance. These matters are integral, not peripheral, elements in the community life. A majority of citizens participated and nowhere is the "let George do it" approach apparent.

The fruits of work are plainly visible: an $80,000 public library, a large modern hospital and medical center, a brand-new municipal building, a top-ranking school system, a burgeoning of industrial receipts to equal the agricultural income, a multi-million dollar college with a revolutionary curriculum.

In 1956, Laurinburg was designated an All-America city which was the smallest entry in the nationwide contest and the only southeastern city to receive the coveted award.

Laurinburg has been often described as the city of beautiful homes. In a few years, the phrase will have to be enlarged, for Laurinburg is embarking on a program of urban renewal and slim clearance which will spruce up its business district. Low rent housing was under construction in 1962.

Nevertheless Laurinburg manages to convey a feeling of relaxation and friendliness which some prosperous towns have sacrificed. Because work here is not a materialistic frenzy, but a historic and natural way of life.

For a little city Laurinburg has exceptional recreation facilities. The city operates seven summer playgrounds under the supervision of a full-time recreation director. There are three parks, a nine-hole country club golf course, three swimming pools. Fishing and hunting are conveniently available. Lumber River is suitable for canoes and small craft, and the North and South Carolina beaches are a hundred miles away. Golfers reach Pinehurst or Southern Pines in thirty minutes. Around twenty manufacturing establishments in Laurinburg and East Laurinburg employed 3500 in 1961. Most industries are manned by white labor, but the Laurinburg Plywood Plant is noted for its 98 percent Negro work force. Unions have made no headway in Laurinburg, because labor and management know and respect each other. Almost all industries are locally owned and managed.

Laurinburg set a record in its contributions to St. Andrews Presbyterian College. Donations in the city amounted to over $200 per capita.

Laurinburg's twenty-five churches are the focal point of the community. The old Scottish Presbyterian ingathering is still an annual event, and the custom has even spread to other denominations. The older churches, all imposing structures, are scattered up and down Church Street, which crosses Main at the courthouse.

Laurinburg was settled about 1787 and incorporated in 1877, but as late as 1840 contained only three dwellings, a store and a saloon.

More than 100 years ago an academy was at the site. It was succeeded in 1853 by privately-founded Laurinburg High School, which gained a reputation for the caliber of its faculty. The best-remembered was Dr. William Graham Quackenbush, a crippled, orphaned Virginian, perhaps the most effective newcomer ever to reach Laurinburg. He reopened the high school in 1879 and for 21 years turned out a stream of superior graduates, many of whom justified his instruction by laying the foundations for modern Scotland County. Among them were Governor A. W. McLean, Admiral Victor Blue, Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper and others.

Quackenbush helped charter Scotland County. The community's appreciation is expressed by a monument on the courthouse lawn, and Dr. Quackenbush is said to be the only schoolteacher in North Carolina to be so honored.

Laurinburg city school system now has 7 schools and 145 teachers. The superintendent A. B. Gibson also is president of the county historical society.

The town was named for the old high school, which was named for the McLaurin family.

The McNairs

The history of the McNair family is an indispensable element in the Scotland County story. John F. McNair, Sr. was here before Laurinburg was. After a four-year hitch in the Confederate Army, he returned home to build a store at Springfield Mills where his father's homestead was. He shortly built another one in Laurel Hill, and his son opened up business in Laurinburg. After the sons death, Mr. McNair, Sr. settled in Laurinburg and became the origin of an immense chain of interests which includes just about every type of business in the county. He was the biggest farmer in the state (his bank paid off every depositor in full at the 1929 crash and remained open in spite of it.) He left an estate second only to that left by the Dukes and Reynolds.

Rough Town

Laurinburg was a rough-tough town for a few years after the Civil War. The railroad brought in a hard-drinking crowd, whose mode of recreation was a little on the violent side. There were as many as twelve saloons in the little town, and there was nothing the boys loved better than shooting up the place after an evening at the bar. Many Scotchmen were also known to have a considerable capacity for whiskey, and the battle between wets and drys was a close one. Finally in 1892 the barrooms were permanently shut down. Beer and wine were voted out in 1949.

Inventor

The honor of having invented a revolutionary cottonplanter belongs to a Scotland County man, James Lytch. The Lytch Cotton Planter, used all over the South, was patented in 1870. John W. Huntley of Union County had come out with a planter in 1859 which did not meet with much success. Although similar in some respects, the Huntley and Lytch planters were different enough for each to be patented in its own right.

Blind Trade

One of the customs at the Old Scotch Fair was swapping horses in the dark. Only the sorriest glue-factory material was offered in this way. On one occasion, a man took his nag out into the dark and asked $5 boot from every trader. After working all night, he brought his horse up to the light and found he had made $140 boot and the same old nag he started with. The Scotch Fair ran for almost 100 years, and was finally closed on petition of citizens because of the rowdy and boisterous behavior of the participants. Reports of the fair state, however, that "only one white man was killed during the entire history of the fair."

Drowning Creek

Scotland's main waterway has three names. Some folks call it Drowning Creek, as it was in early times and still is in surrounding counties. John Charles McNeill, N. C.'s poet Laureate, affectionately named it the Lumbee, but the official designation is Lumber River. The name is possibly of Indian derivation, or it may refer to the logging interests which used its stream. Lumber River is a succession of horse-shoe curves, and at very few places can you see more than an elbow of water. Filtered through miles of sandhill region, the river is nevertheless stained by juniper and cypress roots. It is a tranquil, cool stream, narrow but deep enough to carry canoes and other small craft. Fish of all kinds are caught in its waters, and some daring souls even swim there. When asked if there weren't snakes in the Lumber, one citizen of Wagram replied, "I guess so, but when you're in there, you just pretend like you don't know it."

Scot Humor

For every Scotchman that ever lived, there is at least one joke about his thrift. More often than not, this admirable quality is made out to be a vice rather than a virtue. If so, we say that individuals and governments could stand a little more of this particular vice. At any rate, here's a typical story.

A certain Scotchman who had come to this country was courting a girl from whom he had been unable to obtain a definite answer. At last his ardent nature could endure the suspense no longer, and he went to the village station and telegraphed. All day he waited with many a sigh until at last just after six o'clock the answer came and was favorable. The operator whose sympathy had been excited remarked that he wouldn't have a woman that would keep him all day in such suspense. But the Scotchman replied, "Na, na mon. Gie me the lassie that waits for the night rates. It's the gude wife she'll make." (From Rev. A. A. McGeachy in an address before the Scotch Society of America.)

City That Failed

Also characteristic of the Scotchman is a kind of Old Testament sense of justice. Duncan McFarland, Richmond County's first congressman (1805), testified in his will that he never injured anyone except in retaliation after they had done him the first harm.

McFarland owned most of the land around Laurel Hill Church which stands on the Old Wire Road, and believed that the town would one day become the center of the world and a metropolis to rival New York and London. Accordingly he divided hundreds of acres of land into two acre plots for the residential district. Included in his plans was a city of free Negroes. His will provided that each one of his slaves should be freed at 50 and given three acres of land. This stipulation in his will was not fulfilled, the residential plots were not used, and today Laurel Hill Church is exactly that—a lone house of worship standing at a quiet crossroads, surrounded not by tall buildings but a whispering forest.

Banking

For a long time, the First National Bank of Laurinburg was the only bank between Wilmington and Charlotte. A. L. James was the president and he also built the first textile mill in Laurinburg. The First National is now defunct, and State Bank stands as the oldest bank still in business.

Unreconstructed

One usually reads that although southern planters accepted slavery as necessary, they didn't really like it. There was a Mr. McIntyre of Laurinburg, however, who was so in favor of the institution that he wouldn't live in an area where slavery had been abolished. He left this country for Brazil at the outbreak of the Civil war, and died soon after slavery had been outlawed in that country as well.

Courthouse

Scotland's present courthouse was built in 1901, just a year after the county obtained its charter. The old brick building will be replaced with a modern style structure as a part of Laurinburg's urban renewal plan.

Opera

Laurinburg had an opera house in the gay nineties. It was on the second floor of the building on the present Belk's site and featured plays as well as musicals. Banquets were also held at the opera house, and in the Argyle Club Rooms in the State Bank building. The Argyle Club was made up of the most wealthy and prominent men in the community. The club rooms were furnished in the most expensive manner, and it is thought that the high cost involved was the eventual cause of the club's dissolution. The women had a counterpart in the Thursday Afternoon Club, which devoted itself to literary as well as social accomplishments. One of the most elegant events in Laurinburg history was the Thursday Club's Elizabethan ball, featuring costumes and coiffures of the 16th century and an Italian orchestra from Wilmington.

Danced all Night

Old Laurinburg school had its ups and downs and was closed at intervals. But it was used throughout its career for community events, such as the celebration of completion of the railroad to the community. On this occasion, the celebrants danced all night. The building was sold in 1863 to A. P. Gage, a northern educator and author of Gage's Physics, a textbook. Charles Smith had the school in the 70's, and the notable Prof. Quackenbush succeeded him.

Colin Lindsay

In the old Stewartsville Cemetery between Laurinburg and Johns is the grave of one of the most colorful preachers to come out of the Presbyterian Church. Colin Lindsay was born in Scotland, commissioned by the High Kirk of Scotland, and came to America in 1792, assuming the pastorate of Black River Church in what is now Sampson County. A forceful man with decided opinions, he got into numerous rows with his flock. They charged him with using profane and violent language (like "liar," "villain," and "traitor,"), with breaking the Sabbath, and indulging too freely in spiritous liquors. Once he threatened to thrash an elder of his church (a thought which would probably not horrify many a present day minister), and firmly denounced the popular wave of evangelistic revivalism as the "work of the devil." These and the like charges kept Rev. Lindsay on the move from church to church, his last pastorate being Bethel Church in upper Robeson. He spent the last years of his life on a modest estate near Turnpike Bridge in Scotland County.

Such a turbulent career may have been partly influenced by the unusual circumstances of his birth. Before Colin Lindsay was born, his mother passed into a death-like coma. Her husband thought she had departed this earth, and arranged an impressive funeral with relatives coming from far and wide to celebrate the wake with much feasting and drinking. The body was deposited in the family vault a few hundred yards from the homestead. Returning from the cemetery, two stalwart Scots, still in a somewhat exalted mood because of too much friendliness with John Barleycorn, began bragging about each other's courage. One finally dared the other to go back to the vault and lay one of the long transporting poles alongside the coffin. The challenge was promptly accepted, and the darer followed to see that all terms of the contract were fulfilled. As they neared the vault, they observed two men suddenly emerge from it and run off as fast as they could. The two friends slowly approached the coffin and found to their amazement that it had been opened. The lady's ring finger had been cut off for the sake of the jewelry and was bleeding. Not at all dead, Mrs. Lindsay was carried back to her family by the now thoroughly sober braggarts. She regained her health completely and several years later bore her tempestuous son, Colin.

Temperance Hall

Established in 1855, the society first met at Spring Hill Academy, but by 1860 had its own building, now restored and open for Sunday visitors. Members who violated the temperance pledge were fined five dollars for the first offence and were expelled on the second.

The membership was represented by stars painted on the ceiling: a gold star for the living, a white one for the deceased. Books were loaned and compositions assigned. Topics of current or philosophical interest were debated in the little octagonal hall. Some of the more interesting conclusions were: to denounce the Scotch Fair because of the carousing that went on there; that an agricultural society would benefit the community; that the most valuable professions were in order: teaching, printing, blacksmithing, farming, moulding, and tailoring. A resolution at the beginning of the Civil War read, "May each man return, moral and upright as he now is."

A break in the records is followed by the words, "After considerable interruption, caused by an unwelcome visit of Sherman's army, the Society met again and marshalled out their little band with three cheers for temperance and literature."

The restored meeting house stands across from Spring Hill Cemetery about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles west of Wagram. Anybody in town will be glad to direct you to this fascinating landmark. John Charles McNeill is buried in the cemetery there, and memorial gardens have been planned to further beautify the site.

The following "Standards of Practice," adopted at the inception of the Association of North American Directory Publishers in 1898, and strictly adhered to over the years, is your guarantee of satisfactory Directory Service.

The publisher of a Directory should dedicate his best efforts to the cause of business uplift and social service, and to this end pledges himself:

1. To consider, first, the interest of the user of the book.

2. To subscribe to and work for truth, honesty and accuracy in all departments.

3. To avoid confusing duplication of listings, endeavoring to classify every concern under the one heading that best describes it, and to treat additional listings as advertising, to be charged for at regular rates.

4. To increase public knowledge of what Directories contain; to study public needs and make Directories to supply them, to revise and standardize methods and classifications, so that what is wanted may be most easily found, and the Directory be made to serve its fullest use as a business and social reference book and director of buyer and seller.

5. To decline any advertisement which has a tendency to mislead or which does not conform to business integrity.

6. To solicit subscriptions and advertising solely upon the merits of the publications.

7. To avoid misrepresentation by statement or inference regarding circulation, placing the test of reference publicity upon its accessibility to seekers, rather than on the number of copies sold.

8. To co-operate with approved organization and individual engaged in creative advertising work.

9. To avoid unfair competition.

10. To determine what is the highest and largest function of Directories in public service, and then to strive in every legitimate way to promote that function.

"r"—RESIDENT

"h"—HOUSEHOLDER

"r" AND "h"

Two important symbols are used in your City Directory. The symbol "r," before an address stands for "Resident." That person resides at that address but is not the head of the family or family head. The symbol "h" stands for "Householder"—the person in whose name the home is occupied.

CAUTION . . . . .

Pay no money in advance to itinerant Directory Canvassers. We are led to mention this from the fact that certain parties have been fraudulently using our publications as specimens, and by that means collecting money in advance. Before signing an order, see that it has the name of the publisher of this City Directory printed thereon. We ask no payment until the work is delivered, and our solicitors have strict orders not to take advance payment for either advertising or subscriptions.

Common Sense About City Directory Circulation

THE TRUE VALUE of advertising circulation is circulation consulted.

TO BE EXACT by actual survey in twenty-four average American cities by actual count each City Directory averaged three and one-half consultations for each business day.

TO BE CONSERVATIVE we will eliminate the sixty Sundays and Holidays when no tests were made.

FOR EVERY THOUSAND DIRECTORIES sold there will be an average of three and one-half consultations for each book for THREE HUNDRED and FIVE days, therefore  $1000 \times 3\frac{1}{2} \times 305 = 1,067,500$ .

CONSULTATIONS OR CIRCULATION

CITY DIRECTORY
is National ADVERTISING

★ Each edition of your City Directory is widely distributed to free - reference City Directory Libraries located at the Chambers of Commerce of Hundreds of other cities.

Therefore your ad in the City Directory is seen by buyers from coast-to-coast

ARE BOUGHT AND SOLD
CLASSIFIED BUSINESS LISTS
THAN ANY OTHER MEDIUM
ON EARTH

EXPLANATION

Wives names are listed with husbands, the name of the wife is shown in parenthesis following the husband's as follows: Gregory Richd M (Mary L).

In case of a widow by death, wherever possible the name of the deceased husband is shown in parenthesis as follows: Gregory Mary L (wid Richd M).

The occupation and place of employment is listed as follows: Gregory Richd M (Mary L) slsmn Starr Clothing Co.

Names in heavy type denote advertisers in this City Directory.

Ownership or co-ownership of a firm is indicated by showing the individual's name in parenthesis following the firm name, as follows: Carson Grocery Co (Geo B and Paul N Carson).

A firm name enclosed by parenthesis indicates ownership or co-ownership by the individual whose name precedes, as follows : Carson Geo B (Carson Grocery Co).

The head of the house is indicated by h preceding the street address; other members of the family and roomers are indicated by r preceding the street address.

The word street is not used in addresses. Where a designation av, clr, ter, etc., does not appear, the designation st is understood.

Out of Sight - Out of Mind
★ Out of Business ★

The importance of keeping firm and product names in the public eye is recognized by all business men. It is astonishing to see how a firm or product, however meritorious, will slip into the limbo of the forgotten if not persistently advertised.

The City Directory is the natural medium for keeping a business or product name in the spotlight.

HILL'S LAURINBURG

Directory of Household,ers, Occupants of Office Buildings and Other Business Places, Including a Complete Street and Avenue Guide

Including College Park, East Laurinburg, Homemont, Macland, McLauren Acres, Pine Acres and Westwood

1962

Copyright, 1962, By Hill Directory Company

In the following list the numbered streets are arranged in numerical order followed by the named streets in alphabetical order, the intersecting streets being shown. The number of each building on the street is given in numerical order, and opposite the number is placed the name of the occupants or house-owner or tenant. In the business blocks containing offices the occupants are shown by room numbers where practicable, in apartment homes the number denotes the number of the apartment. In all streets both sides of the street are included in one list. The profession or business of individuals or firms is given only at their respective place of business; to find occupation of others refer to Alphabetical List of Names.

The symbol © following a householder's name indicates that we have received information during the canvass that the house is owned by some member of the family, but as the publisher cannot and does not guarantee the correctness of the information furnished, nor the complete absence of mistakes no responsibility for errors can be or is assumed, nor can the publisher furnish further information than that shown.

Telephone numbers, as supplied to us on our canvass are shown opposite names.

Figures in parenthesis denote old numbers.

The word street is not used in addresses. Where a designation av, clr, ter, etc., does not appear, the designation st is understood.

(The numerals that appear at right edge of columns, ahead of street descriptions and some street intersections, are merely for the guidance of the publishers, and have no other significance.)

(This section includes some listings reading "No Return." In each case the Publishers tried diligently, by various means, to obtain the information for the occupants, but were unsuccessful. First, two personal calls were made by an enumerator; next, a double postal card was mailed and the telephone used when possible.)

Power of Advertising

THE CITY DIRECTORY is the power that generates information for the buyer that he may know who deals in the product he wishes to purchase. If your business is not classified properly, and a display advertisement arranged to describe your business, how can you expect the buyer to trade with you?

ADVERTISING is the foundation upon which successful businesses are built. You must apply this to your own particular business.

ADVERTISING is the power of an idea multiplied.

This Publication Is The Product of a Member of

—thus assuring you the same service that skill and care can produce in the way of City Directories or other reference media, and providing protection against fraudulent advertising schemes which operate under the name of Directories.

The following "Standards of Practice," adopted at the inception of the Association of North American Directory Publishers in 1898, and strictly adhered to over the years, is your guarantee of satisfactory Directory Service.

The publisher of a Directory should dedicate his best efforts to the cause of business uplift and social service, and to this end pledges himself:

1. To consider, first, the interest of the user of the book.
2. To subscribe to and work for truth, honesty and accuracy in all departments.
3. To avoid confusing duplication of listings, endeavoring to classify every concern under the one heading that best describes it, and to treat additional listings as advertising, to be charged for at regular rates.
4. To increase public knowledge of what Directories contain; to study public needs and make Directories to supply them; to revise and standardize methods and classifications, so that what is wanted may be most easily found, and the Directory be made to serve its fullest use as a business and social reference book and director of buyer and seller.

5. To decline any advertisement which has a tendency to mislead or which does not conform to business integrity.

6. To solicit subscriptions and advertising solely upon the merits of the publications.

7. To avoid misrepresentation by statement or inference regarding circulation, placing the test of reference publicity upon its accessibility to seekers, rather than on the number of copies sold.

8. To co-operate with approved organization and individuals engaged in creative advertising work.

9. To avoid unfair competition.

10. To determine what is the highest and largest function of Directories in public service, and then to strive in every legitimate way to promote that function.

$100 Reward will be paid by the Association of North American Directory Publishers for the arrest and conviction of any person or persons engaged in the publishing, collecting or canvassing for any fraudulent or fake directories.
